Important note: If the Contractor or Client become aware of a discrepancy in any of the architectural documents, they are to inform the Architect immediately. If the Architect is not involved in the contract administration or building phase of the works, there will be no liability to the architect regarding issues arising from discrepancies in the architectural documents. It becomes the responsibility of the Client or Contractor to perform tasks such as, but not limited to site visits, shop drawing review, document coordination and addressing issues relating to discrepancy in architectural documents.
